

But To No Avail . . .

HOMEOWNERS DURING 1920s GAVE BETH-EL A HARD TIME

The last time it wasn't so easy. THE 1958 Beth-El Zedeck went up and will be dedicated without a word from the county zoning commission. But back in 1923 and 1924, when the present structure at 34th and Ruckle was being constructed, a prolonged court fight delayed the completion of the building for nearly a year.

The picture at that time was as follows:

Since its inception in the early 1920's, Beth-El had not had a real home of its own. Plans were formulated for a new building, and on Yom Kippur of 1922 over $50,000 was pledged for the sanctuary.

BUT THE homeowners in the neighborhood of 34th and Ruckle protested the building of the congregation to the zoning board, claiming that the building would lower the value of their homes. The board of zoning appeals rejected their petition, saying that there were already numerous other religious buildings in the neighborhood and that it would mean undue hardship for Beth-El to find property elsewhere.

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the new building took place in the spring of 1923 with the congregation expecting the building to be ready for the High Holy Days that year.

A FEW MONTHS later, the late Jack Goodman, then building committee chairman, placed the box containing historical documents in the cornerstone with

BETH-EL TO MOVE OFFICES AUG. 11

Congregation Beth-El Zedeck will move its offices from its present building at 34th and Ruckle to its new building at 600 W. 70th St. on Aug. 11, Rabbi William P. Greenfeld of the congregation told THE POST and OPINION this week.

The rabbi added that the congregation expected to move completely from the building on Sept. 2.

This is the third in a continuing series of articles about Congregation Beth-El Zedeck's preparations for the dedication of its new edifice on Sunday, Aug. 31.

Rabbi Feinberg from Cincinnati as the rabbinical official.

But the troublemakers weren't through. The man who then owned the house which is now the annex happened to be a city engineer. He was violently opposed to the building.

ABOUT ONCE a week he would find some minute fault with the construction process and then go to court and have the work stopped. Members of the Beth-El board of directors were in court almost every day.

Because of the engineer's har-

Kashrut Bid To Be Taken Up Soon: Leve

A request made by Indianapolis' new kashrut group that the Jewish Welfare Federation take over kashrut matters in Indianapolis will be considered at a meeting of the Federation's budget and policy committee in late August or early September, Manuel I. Leve, Federation president, told THE POST and OPINION this week.

"We'll give it some thought," he said.

Leve added that a meeting of the Federation board was expected to follow the committee meeting by a week.

BUT JEWS CONTINUE TO SUPPORT CENTER

The Concord Center building, which for decades housed the Jewish Welfare Federation and much of the social life of the Jewish community on the South Side, was sold this week by the Jewish Welfare Federation to the Concord Center association.

BUT THE Concord Center is continuing to receive the active support of many Indianapolis Jews.

Among them especially is John Efroymson, chairman of the center's Boy Scout committee and institutional representative of Concord Center.

Efroymson, who has served Scout troop No. 50 for 30 years, recalls that the troop was overwhelmingly Jewish in membership until the early 1940's.

JACOB MUELLER was the troop's first scoutmaster, and Leon Mordoh is its present one. Jackie Calderon today is the troop's only Jewish member.

Two Jewish members of the center's board, Alvin Cohen and Lewis Lurie, help the center to formulate its policies and programs. And Ben Goldman, who died last year, took an active role in the Center's Scout program and was instrumental in seeing that many of the boys at the Center got to go to the Boy Scout camp.

MRS. GOLDMAN today is "a veritable dynamo in the Center's Mother's Club" according to Jim Clark, director of the center.

Clark named other Jewish persons, such as Leon Cohen and Gilbert Cohen, who had donated materials and equipment to the center.

THE CENTER even today continues to be used by a number of South Side Jews. Clark estimates that close to 10 per cent of those using the Center are Jewish.

What is the Concord Center all about? According to Clark, the Concord Center is a "non-sectarian, interracial social group work agency serving all in the neighborhood through a program of recreation and informal education."

ONLY ONE plaque reminds Concord Center members of the building's Jewish origin. On the front wall of the center's log Sam Kagan, Westchester president, told THE POST and OPINION that the party was well-attended and that not one person had commented on the club's choice of date. . . . Irwin Katz, prexy of the JCC, noted that over 2000 were at the center on Sunday but none mentioned Tisha B'av.

Local JNF chairmen Ben Prince and Leo Talesnick announced this week that members of the Indianapolis community can take advantage of this opportunity by sending donations to them or any members of the Indianapolis council.

EACH TREE represents one year of Israel's statehood, and 10-tree certificates may be purchased for $20. Checks should be made payable to the Jewish National Fund.

The names of each planter of 10 trees will be inscribed in a volume to be presented to Itzhak Ben-Zvi, Israeli president.

MEMBERS of the Indianapolis committee include Mrs. Benjamin Aronsin, Mr. Herbert Adler, Mr. Gabriel Cohen, Mr. Joe Cohen, Mrs. Irving Epstein, Mr. Sholem Ettinger, Rabbi Nandor Fruchter, Mrs. Morris Gernstein, Cantor Myro Glass, Mrs. Harold Goldberg, Mr. Adolph Izsak, Mr. Michael Levanthal, Mr. Lewis Levy, Mr. David Nelson, and Mrs. Sidney Sakowitz.

Homeowners Harassed Beth-El

rassment the building wasn't completed for 18 months or three times as long as had been planned.

HOWEVER, Jacob Solotken, a Beth-El board member then, noted that the troublemaking engineer got his just deserts when it came time for him to sell his home. Since no one else would buy the home he was forced to sell to Beth-El for only $5500 although the house had previously been evaluated at $9000.

The new building was first used for the High Holy Day services of 1924 when Rabbi Jesse Schwartz from Cincinnati officiated.

SINCE THE congregation did not have a permanent rabbi at the time and all of the lighting fixtures were not completed, the dedication of the new temple was postponed. In Decemebr of 1924, the congregation announced the election of Rabbi Isidor Goodman, and his installation and the temple dedication were held concurrently. Rabbi Herbert Goldberg, then president of the Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, presided at the dual ceremony. Also in attendance were the governor, Ed Jackson and the Mayor, Samuel Shank.

A choir under the direction of Abe Barskin performed at the ceremonies.

HINTS OF future internal troubles in the congregation were given when both rabbis gave firm endorsements of Orthodoxy in their addresses. Rabbi Goodman later left Beth-El because he objected to changes in tradition.

Interview with Reform Rabbinical Student
Relates Emphasis on Public Relations

LONDON (NJP) — An Australian student rabbi's description of teaching methods at the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion as described in an interview with him in The Jewish Chronicle here led that austere publication to compare rabbinical methods of teaching in England with those in the U. S.

THE CINCINNATI student is John Levi. He is temporarily filling the pulpit of the West London Synagogue (Reform).

The editorial asserted that "from what Mr. Levi says, it may be inferred that a young man could be ordained by Hebrew Union College not knowing very much about rabbinic literature, though he will be well versed in pedagogy and pastoral psychology—in fact, in all the crafts which enable an official to keep moving the pulsating and many sided activities of an American congregation."

IT ADDED THAT: "We may regret that the scholar gives way to the public relations officer; but we must recognize that for good or ill New York and Cincinnati today carry the weight in a rather different way than formerly associated with Mir and Breslau."

In the interview in another section of the paper, Levi says nothing about a public relations aspect of the rabbinate or sacrifice of study of rabbinic literature to absorbing new skills.

HE DID SAY however that American congregations "like to enhance the prestige of their rabbi. I know cases where they buy the rabbi a new car every year because they don't think it right for their rabbi to drive around in last year's model."

He added that about half of the 110 students at the Cincinnati seminary were married, and that a significant number of the married students kept kosher homes.

WHEN HE explained that many student rabbis travelled as far as 1000 miles from Cincinnati to serve week-end congregations, the Jewish Chronicle urged that this aspect of service be emulated in Great Britain by the recognized rabbinical school.

Only Survivor of Nuri es Said,
Slain Iraqi Premier, is Israeli

JERUSALEM (NJP)—Fate has played a queer trick on Nuri es Said, slain Iraqi prime minister whose entire family was wiped out with him in the recent revolt.

HIS ONLY known survivor is a young Jewish boy now living with his mother in an Israeli border kibbutz.

The mother told newsmen here she married the son of the late premier in the mid 1930s, when her family was on terms of close friendship with the Said family.

IN 1946, when her son was four years old, she moved to Tel Aviv, after separating from her husband.

NADIA M. said she has carefully concealed her family connections from her son, who attended school in Tel Aviv before going to the kibbutz. As matters stand now, she added, her son will be eligible for army service within two years, as an Israeli.

HER HUSBAND, Sabah, had two children by his second wife, but both were killed with the family in last month's uprising.

Center Director

In your article on Alaska (July 25) I was erroneously identified as executive director and rabbi of the B'nai B'rith Center at Rochester.

Russian Jews Talk to American Jewish Visitors
With More Restraint, Less Friendliness—Noveck

STARLIGHT, Pa. (NJP) — Rabbi Simon Noveck, who has just returned from a six-week tour behind the iron curtain, told a B'nai B'rith Institute of Judaism here of a marked difference between the average Russian man-in-the-street and the Russian Jew.

RABBI NOVECK, who said he spoke with hundreds of Jews, found the non-Jewish Russian more frequently friendly, talkative, eager to converse with an American and free from anxiety over doing so.

"But in trying to meet and talk with Russian Jews," he related, "I found more fear. They were reluctant to be friendly. This was true despite the obvious feeling that they were anxious to talk to an American Jew, to learn something about Jewish life in the United States."

JEWES APPEAR free to worship and study, Dr. Noveck said. "In Moscow I found a class of 60 elderly men studying Talmud. In Kiev I spoke with a Jew who had just emerged from a private home where he and others gathered for Sabbath services."

Although the few synagogues are filled—in some cases services are held in three shifts to meet the heavy Sabbath turn-out—no young people and few middle-aged persons attend them. "The services give the appearance of old-age homes," he said.

ONE OF HIS guides was a young Jewish girl, Dr. Noveck related. "Religion is for grandparents," she told him. "We are atheists."

Quiet At Pool But Orthodox
Take Steps To Retaliate

JERUSALEM (NJP)—Although the controversial new swimming pool in which men and women swim together opened unceremoniously this week, the Orthodox groups have begun a campaign of retaliation against the new owners.

THE NEW OWNERS are a group of co-operative colonies affiliated with the ruling Mapai party and the Progressive Party. The Aguda (Orthodox) has announced that it is issuing a ban on Thuva, which is the old-established dairy marketing co-operative of Histadrut, the general labor organization which is the backbone of the Mapai party. The Aguda announced that it will organize its own competing dairy co-operative.

ANOTHER action, this one aimed at Mayor Gershon Agron of this city who has supported the mixed swimming pool, is refusal to pay Jerusalem city taxes by the Agudists as a "passive resistance" measure.

El Al Reports Practically No Cancellations

By AL ARONOWITZ
NEW YORK (NJP) — Air traffic to Israel remains virtually unaffected by the Middle East crisis, according to a spokesman for that country's El Al Airlines.

Additional Book Review

GIMPEL THE FOOL AND OTHER STORIES, by Isaac Bashevis Singer, $3.50 (Noon-day Press, 80 East 11th St., New York 3).

Chekhov and de Maupassant are not superior to the author of these stories.

One tale, "The Little Shoemakers," has an ending not surpassed by O. Henry.

Midrashic and hassidic literature can not improve on Singer's tales of the supernatural. Life in the Polish milieu of his youth has been reproduced with photographic skill and loving remembrance. The characters are unique and unforgettable. Commended to all readers.

—ABRAHAM BURSTEIN

"I would say there haven't been 25 to 50 cancellations," a member of the El Al staff told the POST and OPINION. The spokesman said that Israel is now at the tail end of its tourist season but he insisted that "traffic is holding up very well."

"The day after the Marines landed in Lebanon, there were only three cancellations on flights to Israel," he said. "The next day there were only 10 to Europe and Israel combined."

"Normally, as soon as there is any sort of world crisis, Americans leave Europe in droves. But this time, we have had almost nothing coming in from Europe.

"Normally, also, when there is a shooting, say, on the Syrian border, we get some cancellations. But the present situation hasn't produced the panic which would have been expected. It shows that Israel is taking things very calmly."

Goldmann Presents Plan Of Jewish 'Neutrality'

LONDON (NJP)—Joel Cang, foreign editor of The Jewish Chronicle, reporting to his paper from the World Jewish Conference executive meeting in Geneva, presented Dr. Nahum Gold-

GOLDMANN

Cang wrote:

"As a people, he (Goldmann) said, Jews must discipline themselves to an attitude of strict neutrality between the two blocs. Individual Jews and Jewish communities had, of course, the right to take up a position on the various issues which separated the two conflicting camps. But collectively, as a people, Jewish policy must be a neutral one. At the same time, he urged Jews the world over to do their utmost to help in reducing the acute friction between Russia and the Great Powers in the free world.

Dr. Goldmann did not state explicitly whether Israel, too, should always follow the same policy of neutrality and especially what she should do in the fresh conflict in the Middle East. But it is clear that were Dr. Goldmann to be given a greater say in Israel's foreign policy, which he aspires to obtain, and, indeed, may one day, and deservedly, secure, he would follow a line of neutrality between East and West.

MD DANGLED AGAIN; REDS IGNORE IT

GENEVA (NJP)—The World Jewish Congress continued this week its unsuccessful efforts to get the Soviet Union to welcome a top level Jewish delegation for serious discussions on the Jews of Russia and their destiny.

Delegates to the executive meeting of the WJC were advised that cordial discussions leading to such an invitation had been held with several USSR ambassadors to major western powers, but no invitations had thus far been forthcoming.

So WJC then issued a public statement once more that they would be happy to go to Russia—if they were invited.

THE POLISH delegation indi-

The Tunisian delegation suddenly cancelled its reservations when Tunis dissolved the Jewish Community Council.

Conservatism's Purpose Said Not to Introduce Controversy

JERUSALEM (NJP)—Dr. Moshe Davis, here for the formal dedication of the U. S. Conservative movement's student residence on the campus of the Hebrew University, told a Jerusalem Post reporter why no chapel is included in the structure.

THE ORIGINAL plans for the synagogue center going back to 1926 when ground was first purchased in Jerusalem would naturally have included a sanctuary, Dr. Davis, who is provost of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, indicated.

These plans never matured, and when the new program was envisaged, it was felt that duplicating already existing facilities for worship was not warranted. The Hebrew University has a new chapel, the Israel Goldstein Synagogue.

"IT IS NOT our purpose to introduce controversy, Dr. Davis said. "As in American Jewish history, so in Israel, the living people will produce living answers. That is the essence of Conservative Judaism as I understand it."

Despite the absence of a chapel in the structure, Dr. Davis saw the student residence for Conservative rabbis as providing "Israelis who have had experience only with the traditional Orthodox form of Judaism... an opportunity of meeting on a permanent basis, representatives of a kind of Judaism which has almost no parallel in Israel."

Attractive Girl Asks Someone To Try To Identify Her

TEL AVIV (NJP)—An attractive Polish Jewish girl who believes she is either 15 or 16 years old has published a pathetic appeal for someone to identify her in Israeli newspapers. A photograph of the young miss accompanied the ads. She is a ward of Youth Aliya.

"I am an orphan. I do not know who my parents were and what were their names; I do not know where and when I was born. Please, look at this picture, perhaps you may recognize me," the ad stated.

"I am now 15 or 16 years old, and I believe that I was born in one of the ghettos in Poland, perhaps the one in Warsaw. The people who saved me registered me under the name of Raizele Tamin, or Tomin; but this is no proof that it was my real name. Look at this picture; if you think that you know whose child I am, or you know any of my relatives, please write to Aliyat Han-oar, Tel Aviv."

BB District Secretary Lawrence White Dies

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (NJP)—Lawrence White, 57, secretary for 30 years of B'nai B'rith district one, died here this week.

Mr. White guided the district during his tenure as district secretary from a membership of 4000 to more than 100,000.

During the district's recent annual convention at Kiamesha Lake, N. Y., delegates established the Larry White youth fund to expand B'nai B'rith's youth projects.

ACCUSED MASS MURDERER'S TRIAL CLOSES

U.S. Judge Studies Decision On Extradition of Artukovic

LOS ANGELES (NJP)—Whether Andrija Artukovic, accused of mass murdering Jews, ever will be extradited to Yugoslavia to stand trial for his war crimes, is still a moot question—with hearings before U. S. Commissioner Theodore Hooke having closed.

Experts here seem to feel that Artukovic, who so far has been able to stall off extradition, will not be deported.

U. S. Attorney George E. Danielson, who handled the case, believes he has won.

Commissioner Hooke, after studying the evidence, will hand-down his decision, probably in the fall.

Artukovic, who was Nazi minister of interior of Croatia, has been charged with ordering murders and burnings alive of men, women and children. His extradition was called for by the Yugoslav government as a common murderer under a treaty in existence between the United States and Yugoslavia.

Bill Would Bar Election Gifts to Israel Parties

JERUSALEM (NJP)—One of three bills introduced into the Knesset last week which would limit election campaign expenditures, would bar contributions from abroad.

Yigal Alon's bill was the most severe of the three. It would limit individual expenditures to 1500 Israel pounds (about $840) and expenditures by any one party to 180,000 Israel pounds.

LEN LEVY, MAJORS' LONE JEWISH COACH, IS A PIRATE FIXTURE

By MAX HEIT

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (NJP) — When Groucho Marx leers through the TV screen and says "Go see your Plymouth-DeSoto dealer!" most of the people in the Greater Pittsburgh area merely drop out to Forbes Field to see the Pittsburgh Pirates in action.

FOR THERE, with the big No. 42 on his back, is Leonard Howard Levy, coach of the Bucs who doubles in brass as owner of one of the largest auto agencies in Pennsylvania.

This double life of Len Levy has been running its tandem track for about 25 years. But being versatile appears to be his cup of tea. When he isn't at the first base coaching box or selling cars, Levy finds time to sit in on some of his affiliations among which are Beth Shalom Synagogue, Masonic Oakland Lodge 535, Loyal Order of Moose, Jewish War Veterans, Dapper Dans of Pittsburgh, Zionist Organization, B'nai B'rith and Pittsburgh YMHA.

IN THE so-called offseason, Levy participates in baseball clinics, speaking engagements and charitable fund-raising programs. During a breather in 1955, he courted and married the former Estyre Rosenberg of Cleveland.

One of his first jobs as a young boy was with the Pirates, and he has worked for the organization almost continually. Len toiled in various capacities as batboy, vendor, usher and ticket-taker. But he had high hopes of becoming a catcher for the Pirates and managed to work out with the team every day during warmup sessions.

MANAGER PIE Traynor liked what he saw in the hustling young receiver and signed him to a Pirate contract on the opening day of the 1935 season, while Len was still working for the club as a ticket-taker.

He eventually was farmed out to the minors and played with Portsmouth, Va., in the Middle Atlantic league; Rock Island, Ill., in the Western league, and Savannah, Ga., in the South Atlantic league.

WORLD WAR II temporarily halted his baseball career in 1942 when he enlisted in the Marine Corps. He served four years, two years in the Pacific, and rose to the rank of gunnery sergeant.

Len returned to baseball in the spring of 1947 and coached the Pirates through to 1950.

WHEN BRANCH Rickey took over as general manager of the Bucs in 1951, Levy was transferred to the scouting staff.

As a scout, he was instrumental in signing for the Pirates some of their present-day stars: Frank Thomas, one of National League's leading home run hitters; Dick Groat, captain and shortstop; and Bill Mazeroski, sensational young second baseman.

LAST SEASON Levy returned to the Pirates roster and today he is the only Jewish coach in the major leagues.

His intense love for sports more than any other factor motivated his dual existence. He was one of the greatest all-around athletes in the history of Taylor-Allerdice High School, from which he was graduated in 1931.

LEVY PLAYED all sports and was selected as the outstanding athlete, student and character by the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, students and teachers of the entire Pittsburgh school system during his high school days.

He made the All-City Select team in the three major sports: baseball, catcher; football, half-back, and basketball, forward. And he captained all three sports!

COUPLED with his activity in sports, he managed to find time to get started in the auto business. With the assistance of brother Melvin, who takes over the reins during the baseball seasons, Forbes Field Auto Sales, which is located only three blocks from the ball park, is one of the largest in the area.

Surviving all the managerial changes during his long stay with the Pirates is evidence that the popular Len is one of the highest regarded members of the club's official family.

Barry Latman Called Back by White Sox

INDIANAPOLIS (NJP) — Despite a series of recent losses, which followed a blazing early season record, Barry Latman, Jewish pitching star with the losing Indianapolis Indians, has been recalled by the Chicago White Sox.

Last year, the 22-year-old Latman's record with the Indians was an even 13 wins against the same number of losses. His current record is nine wins against eleven losses, the last seven in a row in the past six weeks.

Connecticut Golf Crowns Fall To 2 Jewish Stars

By SAUL HOFFMAN

HARTFORD, Conn. (NJP) — Two Connecticut golfers you'll most likely hear more about in the next few years copped important state tournaments last week.

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD Hope Yorker, who has been playing the game only two years, won the Connecticut Women's Junior Golf championship with a brilliant 80 over one of the toughest courses in the state.

The second Jewish star to come through with a victory is Duke U. golfer Dick Sinderow of New Britain, who won the Connecticut Open crown. He led the pack by four strokes, shooting a one over par 214 in the 54-hole event.

Hope comes to her athletic ability legitimately. Her father is Murray Yorker, former deputy athletic commissioner of Connecticut.

Hope celebrated her 16th birthday July 5. Hope may compete in the national women's championships Aug. 16 in Greenwich, Conn.

Yorker was a star athlete in his high school days in Hartford and was a boxing promoter along the Eastern Seaboard for several years.

Canadian Socialists Reject Education Ban

SASKATOON, Canada (NJP)

—A motion calling for the end of religious education in the public schools of the Province of Saskatchewan was rejected by the convention of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. The CCF is a socialist party which dominates the political scene in Saskatchewan and is influential in other parts of Canada.

Jack Shapiro, a delegate from Regina, told the convention delegates that non-Christian students were faced with two alternatives under the present program of religious education. They exercise their right to leave the classroom or they try to reconcile their classroom instruction with what they learn at home. Both are cruel alternatives for the child, Mr. Shapiro said.

Tree Purchase Campaign Wins Readers' Imagination as Sales Begin

The drive to plant what may become large enough to warrant a National Jewish POST and OPINION forest in Israel in honor of the tenth anniversary of the new Jewish state looks as if it is beginning to capture the imagination of our readers.

PURCHASES OF trees began to pour in this week.

Those who purchase the trees should remember that these still may be planted, as is the normal procedure with the Jewish National Fund, in someone's honor, or as a memorial. A regular JNF tree certificate will be issued by the national office of the Jewish National Fund.

ANOTHER POINT to remember is that the credit for the purchase goes to your local community. Although the tree is planted as a result of your desire to participate in this effort launched by The POST and OPINION, your local community gets credit in its total.

The first purchase of ten trees, which is the true significance of the present campaign, was recorded. It was made by Mrs. Barney Sandock, of South Bend, Ind., who is known as Mrs. Israel of the Middle West. There is hardly any effort in behalf of Israel which doesn't find the indefatigable Ida Sandock out persistently pressing her friends and neighbors to support.

ALTHOUGH purchases of a smaller number of trees is most welcome, Mrs. Sandock's response fits in with the program of the Jewish National Fund, which has just been announced, called "Ten Trees for Ten Years of Israel."

In announcing the start of this new program, the JNF national board pointed out that tree planting has always had special and deep significance for the Land of Israel.

"TREES," the board stated, "are an urgent necessity in Israel today where every inch of soil must be made cultivable and livable in order to support a growing population. From the Bible we know that Israel once was blessed with lush forests that covered her hillsides and valleys. But centuries of neglect, misuse, wanton exploitation and the ravages of nature, have stripped the land of its greenery. One of the primary tasks in rebuilding Israel as a modern, self-sufficient nation is that of restoring life to the barren soil and this is the task with which the Jewish National Fund has been charged, by the Israel government and the Jewish people."

The purchases of five trees each added to the total. They were by Bernard A. Zweifach of 401 Broadway, New York City, and Meyer Klein, 3005 State St., Saginaw, Mich.

THE FACT that tree purchases have been coming in from all parts of the country is encouraging.

Purchases are tax deductible, and it is hoped that every POST and OPINION subscriber will want to join in this effort on the tenth anniversary of Israel.

Jewish War Veterans Expected To Act On Counter Boycott

By LEONARD LEADER

LOS ANGELES (NJP) — Action by the convention of the Jewish War Veterans of America meeting here next week against the Brown and Williamson Tobacco Co. looms large on the basis of a special investigation which informed sources say will present clear evidence of the firm's participation in the boycott against Israel.

THE REPORT, based on long and thorough investigation, is to be delivered by Abraham Kraditor, national foreign affairs chairman.

The question of a counter boycott against the Kentucky tobacco firm, whose parent company, the British-American Tobacco Co., will not sell to Israel, will be given top priority at the convention. The matter has been under careful consideration by the national leadership.

THE JWV is expected to issue a full public report on the boycott question.

More than 2,500 delegates are expected to attend the 63rd annual convention which opens this Sunday, Aug. 3 for a week of sessions.

A HIGHLIGHT of the annual convention will take place at a national commander's banquet when Admiral Arleigh Burke, Chief of Naval Operations and a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, will analyze the current scene.

A Tuesday luncheon will hear

HOW IT STARTED

An Army officer, a veteran of the Grand Army of the Republic, "authoritatively" reported that in his travels throughout the United States of the 1890s he had never seen nor hear of any Jew who had served under the Union banner. It was carried by Harper's magazine and marked the first respectable spreading of an old libel.

More than 8000 Jews had served the Union, a number out of proportion to the whole population, seven received the Congressional Medal of Honor, and several attained the rank of brigadier general.

It was in part to meet this challenge that the Jewish War Veterans was organized in 1896, as the Hebrew Union Veterans organization, when 78 Jewish veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic met in New York City's Lexington Opera House.

an address by David Ullman, president of the National Community Relations Advisory Council, who will discuss JWV's role in the community relations field.

RUNNING at the same time as the JWV convention will be the 31st annual convention of the JWV's Ladies Auxiliary.

This is the first JWV National Convention to be held on the West Coast.

Israel Language Experts May Work for U.S.

WASHINGTON, D.C. (NJP)—The United States is seeking aid from Israel in getting English translations of Russian scientific and technical publications dating from 1946 to 1954.

Israel has an abundance of scientists adept in both English and Russian.

The National Science Foundation has been negotiating with Israel on behalf of the U. S. Financial details of the negotiations have not been made public.

If negotiations are completed, the translations would be printed in Israel.

Congress will be asked for appropriations to cover the cost of the project. However, the National Science Foundation expects some revenue from the sale of the copies of the Israeli-made translations to go to industry and colleges.

I THINK AS I PLEASE

HOW UNITED STATES ACTION CAN STEER WORLD TO PEACE OR WAR

By CARL ALPERT

HAIFA—We understand that the recent turn of events in the Middle East came as a great surprise and shock to the Department of State. Someone in Congress, I believe, has called for an investigation of America's intelligence agencies overseas. How could these things have happened without some advance awareness in those Washington circles which are presumed to be America's authoritative experts in the Middle East?

The fact is that there were ample warnings—and they began as far back as before the Sinai campaign.

Israelis today no longer have any satisfaction in saying "I told you so." Nor is there any pleasure in having seen our advice and warnings—ignored and flouted at the time by Mr. Dulles—so fully vindicated by the turn of events.

At a time when not an American newspaper, to my knowledge, paid any serious attention to Iraq, an important Zionist periodical in London, the Jewish Observer and Middle East Review, went to press a week ahead of the Iraqi revolt with the ominous headline: "Iraq—Something is About to Happen."

The fact remains that those responsible for the administration of American foreign policy have again and again shown an almost organic incapacity to understand the mentality and the thinking processes of the Arab world.

Landing of American troops in Lebanon, the first serious show of a strong hand, was a step in the right direction, except that it came two years too late! When Britain, France and Israel, anxious to nip in the bud the growing threat of Nasserism, found it necessary, in self-defense, to invade the Suez Canal area, it was the American government which cried out in righteous moral indignation and pointed an accusing finger at its own allies. Nasser was overnight transformed into a hero.

AS THE SITUATION worsened, and two years later, Mr. Dulles saw the Middle East and its oil resources beginning to eddy around in the vortex of a Soviet-Nasser whirlpool, and he ordered exactly the same kind of intervention which he had so roundly condemned earlier.

Make no mistake about this: American troops are not welcome in Lebanon. In the eyes of the populace they are a foreign invading army, and if the Lebanese were permitted to choose between invasion by the army of another Arab state or invasion by the army of a large western state, they would choose the Arabs, who are closer to them in culture and civilization. But when troops are on the march, in consonance with an important national objective, there are always explanations and justifications on all sorts of moral and political grounds.

THE UNITED STATES is now at last physically involved in the Middle East. Any softness at this stage, any attempt to placate Nasser and win him over to apparent co-operation, will spell the end of American influence in this part of the world, where only strength is respected.

The true danger, of course, is that Dulles and Eisenhower will not have the courage to pursue their present program to its full conclusions.

If the landings in Lebanon had been part of a consistent policy, we would have reason for optimism. But some observers fear that the leap into Lebanon was a frightened, automatic, reflex action, rather than a reasoned and planned-out action.

Under the circumstances, it is likely that Washington will seek some excuse to withdraw apologetically from the area either on flimsy pretext that the desired ends have been won—or by offering a sacrifice which will for the time being satisfy the hunger of the modern Pharaoh.

THAT SACRIFICE may very likely be Israel.

It is less than 20 years since Czechoslovakia was the lamb led to slaughter, yet responsible leaders have not yet learned where appeasement leads.

If American leadership is strong, determined, bold and vigilant, unwavering in the face of threat, there will be no danger, and the world will be steered back into the path of peace. But if Washington proves weak, faltering, appeasing—the world will slip lower into the abyss and an inevitable catastrophic war.

What a mighty responsibility rests on the shoulders of those men in Washington! And how often in the past they have shown an incapacity to handle or understand serious situations. Surely the answer to the world's crisis is in Washington today.

Your Name

Want to know what your name means? Address your questions to Mr. Pearlroth, National Jewish POST and OPINION, Box 1633, Indianapolis 6, Indiana.

By N. PEARLROTH

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH: Would you kindly give me the meaning and derivation of my maiden name of Goldich? My mother and father came from Kiev, Russia, in the middle 1800's.—ESTHER GOLDICH GABER, Waterbury, Conn.

GOLDICH is a metronymic, a family name derived from the given name of a matriarch. The name of this ancestress of yours was Golda. Ordinarily a Russian metronymic is formed by the addition of a terminal "... in." If your ancestors had been Russian from the beginning the family name would have been Goldin. But your family must have immigrated into Kiev from the West, either Poland or Germany. When they arrived in Russia their name was Goldes. It was this version of the name that was Russified into Goldich. The Russian family name Zlatkin has the same origin and meaning as your name.

REPARATIONS 62% ORDERED
JERUSALEM — Israel has ordered 62 per cent of the total goods stipulated in the West German reparations agreement, P. Sappir, minister of commerce and industry, told the Knesset finance committee last month.

Knesset To Study Why Old-Timers Leaving Israel

JERUSALEM (NJP) — Public concern over the large number of old-time residents who left Israel last year has led to a decision by the Knesset to debate the question.

Although the figures of 105,000 Jews leaving Israel since 1948 are not considered alarming, the fact that forty per cent of the 13,000 who left last year were old-time residents is worrying officials.

It is expected in view of the lack of conveniences in Israel and the necessity for hard work that some of the new immigrants will move to other parts of the world. But the fact that old families with ties to the land are emigrating has led to the call for the official debate.

HAVE 44% REPARATIONS

JERUSALEM — Israel has received 44 per cent of the total goods stipulated in the West German reparations agreement, P. Sappir, minister of commerce and industry, told the Knesset finance committee last month.

DIGEST OF THE YIDDISH PRESS

'Hava Nagila' Becomes Hit on U.S. Airwaves

By RABBI SAMUEL M. SILVER

The old hora song, "Hava Nagila," has become a hit on the American air waves!

First recorded in Hebrew by Harry Belafonte, the song later was translated into English by another record company and now is a lively antidote to weepy love songs so long in vogue.

All this, according to the Forward's M. Tseder, who gives the text of the English "Hava Nagila" which, he says, is by author unknown. Called "Dance, Everyone, Dance!" the words are:

"Over the Valley, Voices are singing, Bells are ringing, Dance, everyone, dance. Come to the Valley, Run through the clover, Harvest is over, Dance, everyone, dance. Dance where the corn is high, Under a golden sky, Dance where the wine was born, Dance, everyone, dance. Whirl and turn about, Pick up your arms and shout, Join hands and skip along, Dance, everyone, dance. Turn left, turn right, hold tight, Lift your feet, the heart will follow, Lift your voice and fill the hollow, Spread your wings, Life will follow, Fly away, Sweet the day, Dance, dance, everybody dance."

Rabbi Back from Russia Reports on Anti-Semitism

Can it be accidental that the Russian diplomatic corps is almost entirely judenrein?

Rabbi Irving Lehrman, of Miami Beach, one of a five-man clergy group which visited Russia and other countries, thinks anti-Jewishness still prevails in the Soviet. So he told a reporter of the Day-Journal on his return.

The rabbi believes that as long as the Reds insist that a Jew identify himself as such on passports, so long will bias continue in that country.

Dr. Lehrman was the only rabbi in the group which made its tour under the auspices of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Says Only Half Know First Hebrew Letter

JERUSALEM (NJP) — Zalman Shazar told the World Conference of Jewish Teachers here that of the 440,000 U. S. Jewish children enrolled in Jewish schools, only about half could read even the first letter of the Hebrew alphabet.

Shazar said that Jewish school enrollment in the United States had jumped 111 per cent in the past seven years.

The massacre of 250 Arab men, women and children in an Arab village near Jerusalem by the Irgun was held to have been a major cause for an Arab attack on a Hadassah medical convoy in which 54 Hadassah hospital staff members were slain. . . .

What Foods These Morsels Be

TOO HOT TO BAKE? DO IT ONCE AND FREEZE OR STORE THE SURPLUS

By SARAH LIEBER

We must have acclimated ourselves to summer heat. Or perhaps some of us are using the hammock weather for catching up with recipe files. But it does seem more than a coincidence that several of my readers from various parts of the country have written to ask for baking recipes.

I hope you are all taking my advice and baking in the cool hours of the morning, or perhaps in the evening. And do fill the oven with a number of maiholim at once so that you can freeze or store the surplus baked goods for later use. And of course, for days when it is too hot even to consider lighting the oven there are some delightful desserts which are uncooked.

Among these is a "Chiffon Pie" mix, kosher and easily prepared without cooking. You could use an unbaked crust with such a filling. Delicacies from your freezer are always good.

SUMMER TREAT

- 1 cup cottage cheese
 - 1 tblsp. lemon juice
 - ½ cup sugar
 - 1 cup sour cream
 - 1 pint strawberries, crushed and sweetened to taste
- Put the cottage cheese through a sieve or food mill. Add lemon juice and sugar and beat until smooth. Add sour cream and blend well. Freeze in a refrigerator tray until firm around the edges. Turn into a chilled bowl and beat until smooth. Return to freezer and freeze until firm. Cut into squares, pour berries over and serve at once. May be served with other berries or fruits if desired. Serves four.

TO FILL AND BAKE RUGELAH

Roll dough into round. Cut into triangles. Sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar, or spread with jelly or jam. Sprinkle with nuts, raisins, candied fruits or any other desired filling. Roll up from the wide to the narrow part. Place on greased cookie sheet and bake at 375 degrees until brown, about 30 minutes.

II
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
½ cup oil
½ lb. honey.
2 tblsp. brandy
2 cups all-purpose flour
2 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. baking soda

A Word to the Wives

As you know, honey cake, or lekah is traditional for all simhot and for Rosh Hashana as well.

May I suggest that you clip the above recipes for the yomim tovim which will be here in not too many weeks? I'll have more holiday ideas later on.

Thank you for all your kind cards and letters. It is good to hear from you, and your requests and suggestions give me a better idea of how this column may serve you.

WOMEN'S VIEWPOINT

The Men Need Us -- But Let's Let Them Feel Superior

By HELEN COHEN

This, as I've said before, is a man's world.

I've elaborated at length on this theme, demonstrating how women, though thoroughly preoccupied with getting their just due as equals, are only kidding themselves. With all this talk of equality, I decided, this still remains a man's world.

which women actually did play the superior role, but the whole idea never really came to life (I guess I couldn't bring myself to believe such an arrangement was possible) until I read a description of ancient Greece as portrayed in a new novel, "The King Must Die," by Mary Renault.

According to the review in the July 13 New York Times book section, Miss Renault writes of a society over 3000 years ago where "in Eleusis, as in several other Greek cities, the state is dominated by women. Each year a grim ritual is practiced in which the manliest youths engage in a wrestling contest for the honor of being the consort of the city's priestess-queen for the ensuing 12 months. At the end of this time the king must die, to be replaced by the winner of the next contest."

"THE QUEEN of Eleusis gives Theseus (the novel's hero) no choice but to battle to become her escort. 'What is a man to choose?' she demands (as quoted by the Times reviewer). 'Woman bears him; he grows up and seeds like grass, and falls into the furrow. Only the Mother, who brings forth men and gods and gathers them again, sits at the hearthstone of the universe and lives forever.'"

I must say I like this juxtaposition of the sexes as little as I do the society in which women are considered as mere chattel by man, subhuman compared to him.

And while in traditional Judaism there was certainly a tendency to place the feminine sex on a lower level—such as the practice of thanking God, by the men, that they were not created a woman, and the fact that Olam Haba (the world to come) is "pictured in masculine terms, in which the dutiful wife sits at her husband's feet and enjoys eternal bliss only through him" (see "Life is With People," Page 129), even so we get the feeling that there was more equality than not in Jewish life of yesteryear.

THOUGH "the culture is clearly male-oriented" ("Life is With People," Page 418) and "even by the women its features are stated from the male viewpoint... nevertheless, the woman manages to assert herself, not merely in spite of her subordinate status, but often through manipulating it."

"The roles of parents are completely complementary and completely interactive. The father represents the values of the community, the tradition; he stands for mind and spirit, he is the household spokesman of God's law. He is timeless (note the contrast to ancient Greece). The mother is flesh and blood, the source of warmth, succor, emotional response. Neither one can exist without the other..."

Well, as long as they need us, I guess it won't hurt too much for them to consider themselves a superior kind of being.

LONDON (NJP)—Israel gained another admirer this week. He is General Wladyslaw Anders, war-time commander of the Polish Corps who was generally considered anti-Semitic.

Anders told a Jewish Chronicle reporter that he admired the Israelis and could only speak of their military valor in terms of the greeting: "hats off."

'Transformation' Stigmatizes Most Orthodox Rabbis and Leaders; Defends Neturei Karta

THE TRANSFORMATION, by I. Domb, $3.00 (Mismereh Chomosen, Box 106, Brooklyn 11, N. Y.).

In this defense of the Neturei Karta, Mizrahi, the Aguda, and most of the world's Orthodox rabbis in or out of Israel are stigmatized as outside the proper channel of Jewish tradition.

History and halaha both are employed to demonstrate their "estrangement from the Tora." The conclusions follow from the premises but the defenders of the Zionist position would not accept the premises. In any case, this book proves to the fullest that Orthodoxy—as opposed to some of its assailants, who assume the identity of thought among all traditional Jews—is a vastly variegated entity.

NATIONALISM AND HISTORY, by Simon Dubnow, edited by Koppel S. Pinson, $4.50 (Jewish Publication Society).

Simon Dubnow, heir to the historical mantle of Graetz, martyred by the Nazis, scion of a profoundly erudite and pious rabbinic family, but himself a non-observant and non-believing Jew, bears one of the great names in Jewish historiography.

His essay on the philosophy of Judaism ("the Jews are the most historical of all peoples") has been read with emotion by two or more generations of students. His history of the Jews in Russia and Poland is virtually classicized. His advocacy of the Zionist ideal gave it a powerful impetus. Above all, Dubnow's historical methods and outlook have influenced the studies of most succeeding Jewish historians.

In this volume, the capital biographical essay by Prof. Pinson covers every facet of his life and teaching.

The body of the book then presents the Dubnow concept of Jewish nationalism and history, and other ideas, in excellent translation.

Insomuch as Dubnow never accepted the Marxist misrepresentations of Judaism, he remained acceptable to virtually all Jewish groups. His work on hassidism is generally praised; his comprehensive world history of Judaism, not yet Anglicized, is well nigh canonized. There are many other thoughts included, such as his appreciation of Yiddish and the cultural needs of the diaspora. An invaluable compilation and interpretation.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF PURPOSE, by Samuel Belkin (Yeshiva University).

The first of 15 projected brochures called "Studies in Torah Judaism" is a brilliant and learned essay by Yeshiva's president.

Philosophy of purpose, he declares, is the traditional Jewish attitude as opposed to the philosophy of reason approach of the pure rationalists.

What is the meaning of the universe for man? The primary moral aims of Judaism are exemplified in all the mitzvot, including the dietary laws. And it is the soul of mitzvot that Dr. Belkin uncovers—the motives, the impulses, the examples that render the kingdom of God on earth a realm of high ethical resolve and achievement.

RECORDINGS

Some New Singing Goes Right Back to Shtetl

By JOSEPH GALE

Nine years ago in April the first of these columns appeared in The POST, and it behooves us today to return to the subject of our first exploration into the field of Jewish culture.

The column began as a discussion about recordings of Jewish music. Gradually, in spite of the publishers' misgivings, it broadened to include Jewish drama and art, and still later to encompass the entire field of Jewish culture as well as non-Jewish events of particular importance.

WE HOPE the scope of our endeavor will continue to enlarge. But for the next several weeks we should like to return to the turntable, that revolving arena of the best in music, and bring ourselves up to date on recordings from which the press of current events have kept us for too long a time.

There is, first of all, a release by the Workmen's Circle Educational Dept. called "Once Upon a Time," which employs Yiddish folk songs to tell the story of a vanished way of life in Eastern Europe.

SIDOR BELARSKY, bass, and Masha Benya, soprano, are the tender-voiced soloists. Joseph Mlotek is the writer and narrator, and the musical arrangements and piano accompaniment are by Vladimir Heifetz.

This is a heavily nostalgic interlude in which the brightest gayety is tinged with sadness. All the songs are inherently familiar to anyone with a background of Yiddish. There are 38 songs, and the wings of them transport us to the shtetl from which, figuratively we all sprang.

THE CONTINUITY, based on a series of radio programs two years ago, is excellent, as is the choice of numbers. The conception is simplicity itself, and the songs could not have been better chosen.

At the other end of time is the Capitol recording of "Songs of Israel," with Lea Deganith and an orchestra lead by Paul Lichtenstern.

Here are songs as modern as the previous ones were introspective.

Miss Deganith is a graceful and sensitive interpreter who elevates these selections to the status of art. There is drama and hope in her voice, faith, and a completeness of understanding. Here is not only a love for Israel, but for all that Israel implies, and this encircles the hallowed history of Judaism from mystically Biblical times to tomorrow.

SOMEWHERE IN the overtones are echoes of the dead, tragic shtetl.

Miss Deganith is often thrilling. She is ably and delicately aided by musical arrangements in which the scoring is complementary not merely to the words but to mood, and in which the use of piano is skillfully woven into the texture of the song.

WE HAVE exclaimed before over the basso attraction of Hillel Raveh who with his wife, as Hillel and Aviva, has made several recordings in this country of the folk songs of Israel and the Near East. Now he can be heard alone on an Elektra release of "Russian Folk Songs," accompanied on the guitar by Anatoly Malukoff.

Hillel has the traditional Russian basso profundo, rougher than Sidor Belarsky's perhaps, but quite as typical.

HILLEL WAS born in Russia and brought to Israel when he was a child. He learned most of the melodies on this record from his mother, who always conversed with him in her native tongue.

The songs are quiet and heavy, and most end unhappily in the essential tragedy of human existence.

Elektra might have given Hillel a more spacious and resonant recording, but nonetheless, the stuff of Russian lament is here. We suggest you brew yourselves some hot black tea, and listen.

SUMMIT GOLDMANN'S IDEA

NO ONE CAN tell at this point whether it will work out for the advantage of the West or not, but we owe it to Nahum Goldmann to point out that it was he who first proposed the theory that peace in the Middle East could only be achieved following an agreement between Russia and the West.

We heard Dr. Goldmann advance the proposal last winter in a speech before the convention of the Canadian Jewish Congress in Montreal.

THE WRONG WAY

WE FEAR THE Israeli artists are barking up the wrong tree in seeking to set up a wall against outside competition.

So enthusiastic has been the reception the Israelis have given to artists and troupes, from ballet to stage shows to individual performers, from other parts of the world, that the Israeli writers, composers, journalists and actors have asked the Knesset (NJP, July 18, 25) for a law stemming this tide.

WE CAN UNDERSTAND the frustration of Israeli artists and writers, but to set up a ban keeping out foreign performers would harm most those who ask for such a ban.

The glamour attached to a foreign troupe may affect the earning power of Israeli artists, but it also helps to put standards at a high enough level so that Israel can in time hope to compete on the world market by exporting some of her stars.

IT IS DIFFICULT to sell this kind of theory to the Israeli artist at this time, so we hope that the Knesset will turn a deaf ear to their plea. The way to wipe out competition is to do the job better. There is no second way.

CONFUSES US

YOU HAVE TO have the kind of a mind that can figure out the intricacies of a nuclear equation to understand that attitude of the constituted Jewish authorities in connection with the opening of public schools in Los Angeles on the first day of Rosh Hashana.

The Los Angeles Jewish Community Council, backed (NJP, July 25) by both the National Community Relations Advisory Council and the Synagogue Council of America, refused to suggest a change in date on the theory that this is a breach in the wall of separation of church and state in American democracy.

NOW WE'RE SURE that the L. A. school authorities didn't purposefully choose Sept. 15 as school-opening day just because it was a major Jewish holiday. So there's no question of prejudice.

But what astounds us is the apologetic view of the recognized Jewish authorities. The L. A. Jewish Community Council stated that it refrained from demanding that the school calendar be shifted.

BUT THERE WAS no intimation of an apology by the school authorities or even a promise that a similar situation would be avoided in another year by an inspection of a Jewish calendar in this, the second largest Jewish community in America.

We appreciate the arrangements made by the school authorities so that Jewish students might register in the week prior to Sept. 15. But what is the difference in this injection of religious needs into the public school system and a change in the date to Sept. 17 as was done in the schools of neighboring Beverly Hills?

THE WAY TO LOOK AT IT

If you take a young high school boy who has been sheltered to whatever extent he has been in his family and put him onto a college campus almost despite his religious upbringing, whether Jew or non-Jew, this youngster isn't going to be seriously interested in organized religion.

THIS IS THE TIME of life when the youngster begins to stand on his own, to question everything about him, and to be introduced into a new world where everything is his (we were going to say oyster) dish of tea.

During these years, a Hillel director seeks to reach him, and finds most often that he cannot because he has nothing with which to gain a hold.

BUT YOU TAKE these same young people 10 and 15 years later, and they are the mainstays of our congregations. In fact, so active are they, that the criticism is that activity has replaced faith.

But whatever the motivation, the Jewish leadership accepts gratefully the interest of these same people who on the campus never walked into the Hillel House.

WE DON'T KNOW what the Jewish college youngster will be like 25 years hence, when the Jewish community's direction will be more affirmative, but we suspect that on the college campus, the most distraught person will still be the Hillel director.

Only those Hillel directors who understand what is going on and who have developed a philosophical attitude will not lose their hair during these days. And the wise parents and the wise Jewish community will understand, too, and although it will seek to change the pattern, it won't condemn and outlaw, but will work toward improving and perfecting the agencies involved in giving the Jewish youth an appreciation of his heritage.

The EDITOR'S CHAIR . . .

THE ATTACK by Dr. H. Bernard Birnbaum (NJP, July 25) on Emanuel Neumann, president of the Zionist Organization of America, is Dr. Birnbaum's privilege. He blames all the ills of the Zionist Organization of America on the president who is seeking a third term.

Dr. Neumann has to expect just such political broadsides against him. He invited them by permitting this fabrication of a "draft" so that he could be elected—if the constitution is first revised—for a third year in office.

AS FOR OURSELVES, we think the record is clear on our attitude towards Dr. Neumann. We regard him as one of the Zionist giants of the day.

As Dr. Silver's right hand man in and before 1948 and since in his own right, he has played a conspicuous role in every Zionist endeavor.

What's more, Dr. Neumann is still creative, as witness his almost single-handed establishment of the Herzl institute, which is probably American Zionism's most-important cultural contribution to the American Jewish scene.

BUT WE HAVE opposed Dr. Neumann on his election to a third term. We would oppose Rabbi Silver, too, and most certainly there is no man who comes close to the Cleveland rabbi as U. S.'s leading Zionist.

We believe that the great weakness of American Jewry is this tendency of the leadership to hold on long past the time when it should have retired gracefully.

THAT THERE IS no one person who will stand up to oppose Dr. Neumann only proves this point.

All of the candidates have been cowed by this necessity of getting the nod from the top before they can publicly announce that they seek a major office in the organization.

We're not here concerned with the fact that this is not democracy. Our concern is with the effect this kind of bald maneuvering has on the young people who are alienated by a callous display of this sort.

MUCH PREFERABLE to this "draft" would be the election of a triumvirate of Rabbi Max Nussbaum of Los Angeles, Max Bressler of Chicago and Jacques Torczyner of New York. Aside from the geographical distribution, there is the point that these are three top people in the organization whose abilities and devotion cannot be questioned.

We find it difficult not to believe that Dr. Neumann will not retire from the race. In the triumvirate we have just named, he can be assured that the work of the Zionist Organization of America will be carried forward vigorously and the organization will get a needed shot in the arm.

VERY LIKELY, it isn't even Dr. Neumann who is so eager to go to the wars for another year; it could be the palace guard without which no Jewish organization seems to be able to exist. We hope that in this case Dr. Neumann decides to turn a deaf ear to their importunations.

A DISPATCH in the New York Times dated July 23, reports Nahum Goldmann's views—not new to readers of The POST and OPINION—to the effect that because overt anti-Semitism is disappearing, the Jewish group faces a new challenge to its existence.

We're not concerned here with Dr. Goldmann's views, which we think were very valid 25 years ago, but with the designation the Times gives to him as "The U. S. Religious leader."

We hardly think Dr. Goldmann will write to the Times for a retraction, with the veiled threat of a libel suit, but some of our rabbis might like to do so.

VAETHANAN:

The Shema Is Our Catechism

By RABBI JACOB J. WEINSTEIN
KAM Temple, Chicago

Sedra Vaethanan, which concludes Moses' first discourse and embraces most of his second summary address to the children of Israel, contains those professions which would have become the Jewish catechism if Judaism had turned out to be a creed-centered faith. For it contains the Ten Commandments, the Shema and the exordium after the Shema which custom was wisely enshrined in the Tefillin and the Mezuzah.

It was religious genius par excellence which made the Shema the central doctrine of our faith. However it is translated, and there naturally have been several interpretations, all agree that there are two major emphases: namely, that God is and that God is one.

IT WAS THE unity of God which most distinguished Judaism from the ancient Oriental and the later Levantine religions. That unity, which itself grew out of diversity, as evidenced by the plural form of Elohim, was in stark and active contrast to the polytheism and henotheism of the Canaanites, the Egyptians and the Babylonians.

Whether the monotonous stretches of desert waste bred this monotheism, as Renan suggests, or whether it was the inspired intuition of Abraham and Moses, as our Bible suggests, the fact is that while other peoples tended to postulate many divine auspices for natural phenomena, the Jews made God the sole sponsor of heaven and earth and all that is therein.

NOR WOULD the watchers and guardians of the faith concede to the Zoroastrians that God was dual—one of Him being Lord of light and the other of Him being Lord of evil.

Nor again would they listen to the engaging antics of the Trinitarians who ingeniously interwove Plato's emanations with pagan polytheism and thought that they had achieved the best of both worlds with a doctrine wherein three were one and one was three.

Nor were they discomfited when Greek cynics laughed at their dogmatic certainty that God was at all; and again at their lack of imagination and generosity that if God was,

He had to be so anti-social and so strictly alone.

Through all these disputes of the gods and the everlasting debates about the gods, the Jew three times daily proclaimed the Shema and wrote the "D" of Echad in capital letters, to make clear even to the roving eye that Adonai was one and One alone.

THE BELIEVING world has come around to the oneness of God, but there is still the unbelieving world, the men and women of our time who doubt that God is. And they are a motley breed.

There are those among them who identify God with good, but see too little of good in the life of men; and there are those who identify God with evil and see too much of that on earth. And there be those who believe that they themselves, fallible men, could order the universe more rationally and bring a broader measure of justice into the lives of men than that which they see about them. They would cabin God to their own circle and to their own life span and shrink the ineffable to the humanly possible.

And there are those again who fear that if they permit the mind to admit the Great Intangible, Immeasurable, Inscrutable One, they will perforce open the door to the ghosts, the goblins and their uncouth relatives, the djins and jinxes, who will mess up all reason and dethrone common sense.

THEN THERE are those who wait upon the word of the great censor, science, to tell them that they must believe. They are not satisfied that some of its ordained priests have recently allowed as how they may believe.

And among us Jews there are many who await a newer revelation from the deeper soundings of analytic psychology.

Haham gadol Freud had dissolved God amidst the infantile obsessions of the childhood of the race.

Perhaps his disciples will succeed in clearing the snakes and snails from the father image and let it shine again from its primordial heights.

Awaiting all these developments and regardless of their issue, the mature Jew will join with his fellows and proudly proclaim: "Hear, O Israel, the Lord is our God, the Lord is one."

New York 'Women's League for Israel' Blamed

"Reform" Group Loses Place To Worship

JERUSALEM (NJP) — A New York Jewish organization, the Women's League for Israel, was being blamed here for depriving a newly-formed non-Orthodox congregation of a place to worship for the coming High Holidays.

THE CONGREGATION has been termed Reform in the press here. It has been holding a Friday evening service at Bet Hechalutzot, a community center operated by the Women's League. Pressure from Orthodox circles is believed responsible for the ban.

THE CONGREGATION, composed of some 35 members, is part of the Circles for the Renaissance of Religious Life. It is an incipient national group and has an affiliate in Tel Aviv.

Moshe Ben Chorin is the spiritual leader here. Rabbi Arthur Saul Super, an editorial writer for The Jerusalem Post, heads the Tel Aviv congregation.

AT THE FRIDAY night services which have been held for the past three months, members cover their heads with yarmulkes because "we do not wish to offend the susceptibilities of the Orthodox," said Ben Chorin. He added that the service "in no way copies Reform congregations abroad, but is essentially Israeli."

Seating is mixed with a cantor rendering musical selections. Members of the congregation are called upon individually to recite parts of the service.

THE SERVICE lasts about one hour and a quarter.

Dulles Favoring Policy Of Getting Along With Nasser, Is Indication

SUMMIT BID ISRAEL AIM

JERUSALEM (NJP) — Heightened diplomatic activity by the Israeli officials seemed aimed this week at assuring Israel a seat at the summit conference.

Reuven Shiloah flew to Paris this week for a hastily-summoned conference of Israel ambassador to Washington Eban and the Paris and Rome Israel ambassadors. Shiloah is political advisor to the Foreign Ministry.

A Foreign Ministry source here said that David Ben-Gurion has no plans for attending the summit conference himself however, assuming Israel were invited.

Israel Ad Urging Aid To Arab Nationalists Printed, Rejected

JERUSALEM (NJP) — An advertisement urging co-operation with "the Arab national movement" appeared in two Israel publications, but a third, The Jerusalem Post, announced that it had rejected the advertisement.

The ad was placed by Mr. Yellin-Mor, leader of a Jewish terrorist group in the days when Great Britain held the mandate for Palestine.

The advertisement urged "a demonstration of sympathy and an offer of aid to the Iraqi revolutionists and the fighters for liberation from the region's oppressive regime."

The Ha'aretz, leading independent daily, and Olam Hazeq, picture weekly, accepted the advertisement.

Israel Firms To Launch U.S. Insurance Co.

JERUSALEM (NJP) — A combine of Israel insurance companies will set up an insurance firm in the United States with a capitalization of $3,000,000. The company, which will have the government of Israel's guarantee behind it, will sell insurance in the U. S. and invest the proceeds in Israel securities.

Blau Said Rejecting Presidential Pardon

JERUSALEM (NJP) — Rabbi Amram Blau, jailed leader of the Neturei Karta, is reporting refusing to accept a presidential pardon set for Aug. 1.

He is said to have told authorities that he rejects treifniak favors (from one who is not kosher).

By LILLIAN LEVY

Washington Bureau Chief

WASHINGTON, D.C. (NJP) — The big question, as of this moment, in the current Middle East crisis is whether the United States will embark upon a policy of "getting along" with Nasserism and his form of Arab nationalism.

RUMOR, which is always abundant in this capital city, has it that this is the course decided upon by Secretary of State

DULLES

Dulles and Britain's Prime Minister MacMillan.

Congress numbers several advocates of this course on both sides of the political aisle, notably Senator Francis Green, chairman of the powerful Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and a Democrat. Most vociferously for support of Nasserism is Senator Flanders, Republican of Vermont who likes to blame the present crisis on Israel.

TO SUPPORT Nasser at the expense of Jordan, Lebanon, Sudan and the Baghdad pact countries would, in the opinion of some authorities, be the equivalent of another Munich with ultimately the consequences of a 3rd World War.

Israeli sources believe support of Nasserism as Arab nationalism is mistaken. They equate this form of nationalism with that practiced by Hitler, Mussolini, and the war leaders of Japan. They urge a strengthening by the Western powers of the Baghdad countries, Jordan, Lebanon and Israel as a bulwark against further communist encroachment in the Middle East.

AS EXPECTED, strongly opposed to an appeasement policy is Senator Jacob Javits (R., N.Y.) who distinguishes between Nasserism and Arab nationalism. Senator Javits warned that Nasser, with Russian connivance, is bent upon absorbing each of the independent Arab countries and that it is to the interest of the free world to oppose him.

No Arms From Britain

LONDON (NJP) — Israel will get no arms from Great Britain, the diplomatic correspondent of the Jewish Chronicle here reported.

The most Israel can expect from the former mandate is that Britain will turn her eyes if France decides to sell any war material to the Jewish state.

ISRAEL GETS BALER

HAIFA — Israel's first self-propelled baling machine, which will help utilize local vegetation for pulp for the American Israeli Paper Mills has been unloaded.

Humane Slaughter Bill May Pass Despite Bitter Orthodox Opposition

Bill Passes 72-9

WASHINGTON, D. C. (NJP) — By a vote of 72-9, a roll call in the Senate passed the humane slaughtering bill which the Orthodox have fought so bitterly. The measure, which exempts shehita (ritual slaughtering) as humane, now goes back to the House for consideration of several minor Senate amendments.

By LILLIAN LEVY

Washington Bureau Chief

WASHINGTON, D.C. (NJP) — Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) heads a group of liberal Senators on both sides who favor substituting HR 8308 (the humane slaughter bill passed by the House) for the Senate amended version which provides only for a two-year continued study of this highly controversial subject.

THE HOUSE BILL, while exempting religious practices from legislation, specifically recognizes shehita as humane.

This is the first time that any humane slaughter legislation anywhere in the world has endorsed shehita as legally and technically and morally humane.

IN SPITE of this endorsement, the Orthodox groups still bitterly oppose Senate passage of the House Bill. They prefer that a study be made with the hope that ultimately it will result in abandoning the legislation.

While they have not been bashful about letting their views be known and making their pressures felt, their lobbying has been insignificant compared to that of the humane societies who favored HR 8308.

The POST and OPINION learned that the humane societies (some of them) are actively opposing the re-election of Senators who vote for the Senate study bill, particularly Senator Ellender (D., La.)

In all fairness to those Senators and Representatives who favor humane animal slaughter legislation, it should be noted that they have not been influenced by this type of lobbying which they resent as a body.

Reform Hasn't Yet Made Bid To Conservatives for Joint Action

By EDWARD KOSNER

NEW YORK (NJP) — Projected co-operation between the Reform and Conservative movements to introduce non-Orthodox Judaism into Israel has not yet reached the talking stage.

THE SUGGESTION of joint action was contained in a resolution passed by the Central Conference of American Rabbis (Reform) at its annual convention in Chicago early last month.

It was accepted almost immediately for the Conservative movement by Rabbi Wolfe Kelman, executive director of the Rabbinical Assembly.

BUT ALTHOUGH a full month has passed since Rabbi Kelman's endorsement of the co-operative program, negotiations for its implementation have not yet begun.

"As far as I know nothing has been done," a spokesman for Sidney Regner, executive vice-president of the CCAR, told The POST and OPINION. Regner, the spokesman said, left on vacation soon after the convention ended and is not expected back until next week.

RABBI Jacob Philip Rudin, of Great Neck, L. I., president of the CCAR, is also on vacation until Sept. 1.

"No action has been taken on any of the resolutions passed at the convention except that the wording of one has been modified by a committee," the spokesman reported. "But I don't think it's the resolution concerning co-operation in Israel with the Conservative movement."

"WITH OVER half the people involved away on vacation during the summer, I don't think there will be any action on this until the fall," the spokesman added.

Rabbi Kelman said he had anticipated the possibility that discussion of the joint program might get bogged down in the summer doldrums.

"I CAN'T speak for the CCAR, but I know that as far as our group is concerned, we would still be very happy to sit down and talk with them about this," he said.

"They passed the resolution," he added. "It's up to them to begin discussions to implement it."

IN ITS resolution the CCAR declared there is "an urgent need" for the development of progressive forms of Judaism in Israel and urged the initiation of discussions with the representatives of the Conservative movement to that end.

Both groups are currently building housing facilities in Israel for their rabbinical students who plan to study there.

Tunisian Jews Asked To Merge Bodies With Others

TUNIS (NJP) — Just what plans the Tunisian government envisaged when it dissolved the Jewish Community Council recently became clear this week.

THE GOVERNMENT wants the Jewish community to dissolve its Jewish organizations such as hospitals, youth clubs and schools, and retain only the religious bodies. The other groups would be merged with the general population.

Nahum Goldmann said in Geneva that the action of the Tunisian officials was a rather "primitive interpretation" of equality of citizenship.

JEWS WHO profess Zionism were urged to emigrate to Israel, which was a clear warning against any Zionist movement in Tunis.

Why Does The POST and OPINION Carry More Advertising Now Than At Any Time In Its History? The Answer Is Simple, OUR ADVERTISERS GET RESULTS!

Refugee Loses In Race For Congress, May Have Won Democratic Point

WAYNESVILLE, N. C. (NJP) — Heinz W. Rollman, a Jewish manufacturer here, lost his race as a candidate for Congress, but even in losing achieved a good deal for democracy, if only as an example.

A REFUGEE Jew with an accent, Rollman, who is president of the Wellco-Ro-Search Shoe Corp., was told if not privately, certainly publicly, that he had little chance to win.

In fact, the Franklin Press told him so in an editorial when he announced his candidacy last fall. IN A SECOND editorial, after Rollman's defeat, the newspaper asserted:

"We pointed to the fact he was born in Germany, to his Jewish ancestry, and to his foreign accent. Then we commented: 'In this district, those things would seem to doom him from the start.'"

This might indicate that the paper if not anti-Semitic certainly was narrowminded.

But the editorial went on to explain.

"As it turns out, we were being realistic indeed: because those were the charges most often made against Mr. Rollman; because of those things it was suggested he was not 'an American.'"

The editorial then proceeded to divest each of the objections against Mr. Rollman of any validity.

"We think it's high time, though, for somebody to challenge the reasoning of those who made those charges, and the reasoning of those who were influenced by them."

He was not born in America. That is reason, surely, for scrutinizing a candidate: because the foreign-born citizen may not have grown up in the atmosphere of American tradition. But is it reason for rejecting him out of hand? As a matter of fact, the foreign-born citizen might be a better American for that very fact; for he, unlike the rest of us, has had an opportunity to compare America with lands that are not free. After all, each of us, if we go back a few generations, was foreign born; the only real Americans are the Indians.

His ancestors were Jewish. Is that, in itself, reason for rejecting a candidate? There are many Jews who are unfit for public office. But does it follow that all Jews are? that we should rule a man out solely because he's a Jew? After all, the Jews had established a high civilization when our Anglo-Saxon ancestors were barbarians. After all, too, the founder of the Christian religion was a Jew.

He had a foreign accent. Now that must have proved a handicap to Mr. Rollman in making himself understood, in speech. But would anybody suggest he failed to make himself quite well understood, via the printed word? After all, was it the handicap the accent imposed on the candidate that may have cost him votes, or was it what the voters thought when they heard the accent?

This is no defense of Mr. Rollman.

It is a defense of American fairness and honesty. Are those things — foreign birth, ancestry, an accent — really good reasons for voting against a candidate? Or are they — and let's be honest with ourselves — prejudices?

Those questions demand answers. Not to save Mr. Rollman — his defeat is history; but to save ourselves, in the future.

cabin where Boy Scout troop No. 50 meets is, a plaque reading "This log cabin erected in memory of Caroline M. Kahn, 1922."

THE CABIN was given to the Federation building by Harry Kahn, Mrs. Kahn's husband.

And the name of Leonard Strauss, an early scoutmaster of the troop, continues to be memorialized in a Leonard Strauss trophy for the best scout each year.

"OTHER PLAQUES were to be found on the walls of the center but they drifted away," according to Enoch Mitchell, who has served as maintenance supervisor of the building since 1928.

Mitchell noted that little had really changed in the building but its occupants. The gymnasium, walls, offices and heating system are essentially the same as they were when the Jewish Welfare Federation had its offices in the building, he said.

THE CONCORD CENTER, which is now undergoing a renovation and redcoration, has been operating in the Communal building as a neighborhood center for the past 10 years on a $1-a-year lease arrangement from the Jewish Welfare Federation.

Home of the Jewish Welfare Federation when the Jewish community was located primarily on the South Side, the former Communal building continued to function until just after World War II, when it was turned over to the Concord Center.

WITH ITS purchase of the structure, the Concord Center now has complete ownership of the property. The sale of this building represents the second sale of the property by the Federation in an effort to help reduce the substantial loan balance which was made in order to complete construction of the Jewish Community Center. The first property sold was Big Eagle camp, which was purchased by the Ohio Valley Region of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

Under the loan agreement, the Federation also continues to make annual payments of interest and principle during the next five years in order to fulfill its commitment to the bank for the Center building.

UHC Plans to Finish Repairs by Sept. 5

United Central Hebrew Congregation revealed plans this week to complete necessary repairs on its new building at 34th and Ruckle by Sept. 5.

THE BIMA (pulpit) will be newly carpeted; a new loud-speaker system installed, the benches refinished and the painting and fixtures restored to their original luster.

Cantor Yitzchok Jade and his male choir will be assisted at High Holy Day services in the new building by a good baal shaharit. Teams of ushers will assure decorum, and supervision of small children will be provided in the annex.

HONORS AND aliyot will be assigned by a special committee in advance. A newly-erected mehitzah will separate men and women at services.

Seats will be available after Aug. 17 on a first come-first served basis at $15 each. A seating committee will be in charge from this date on. Hours of ticket sales will be announced later.

NEW DISHES and cooking utensils and a new stove will be put into the congregation's kosher kitchen. The sisterhood headed by Mrs. David Fogle will be in charge of the kitchen.
